Previously, in Windows Server 2008 R2, x509Certificates was properly populated with the.cer file in the "Certificates" folders at the machine's Local Machine/Users/[User] and Local Machine/Users/[User]/AppData/Roaming/Microsoft/Crypto/RSA/Thumbprints and Config Drive defaults. Now, in Windows Server 2012 R2 this content is not in the Local Machine/Users/[User] and Local Machine/Users/[User]/AppData/Roaming/Microsoft/Crypto/RSA/Thumbprints and Config Drive defaults folders. Config Drive is enabled in ServiceDefinition.cscfg file,.cer file is embedded in WebRole.csdef. How can I recover this content? A: Part of my answer is a duplicate of this question that got asked in Azure support forums. It has an answer that I will try to summarise here. After many years of running, Microsoft changed the location of the certificates. For anyone who might have used one of the *-certificates.exe tools like certmgr.msc - the.cer files in
