Q: git commit removing the text of the text files in a directory and adding the modified date to all of them I have a directory with 100 text files. I want to use git to save the changes in that directory in version control, but I want the commit message to add the modified date and the modification of each of the text files on its own line. How can I achieve this? A: First, you need to make sure that your files are added with Git's tracking. This is done by running git add for each file. If your files are in the same subdirectory that you are running git add on, you do not need to explicitly add it to git in the special subdirectory, just put the path and name of the file. Next, as you are already aware, you need to add the text from the files to the commit message. You can do this by running git commit -am'message' where you include the text and date. git commit -am 'new message with text' See git commit --help for additional options

Cerebrospinal fluid amyloid- β , α -synuclein, and tau protein levels and amyloid plaque burden in patients with Alzheimer disease with high-risk apolipoprotein E genotypes. CSF levels of amyloid- β ($A\beta$) and α -synuclein and tau protein, as well as cerebral amyloid plaque (AP) burden assessed by [^{123}I]-IBZM-SPECT, were investigated in 80 patients with probable Alzheimer disease (AD) (53 symptomatic) with at least one apolipoprotein E (APOE) $\epsilon 4$ allele (64% APOE $\epsilon 4$ homozygotes) and 31 patients with AD without the APOE $\epsilon 4$ allele (24% APOE $\epsilon 4$ heterozygotes) and 32 healthy controls. CSF $A\beta(40)$ levels were lower in APOE $\epsilon 4$ homozygotes in the AD group as compared with patients without APOE $\epsilon 4$ ($p=0.001$) and the controls ($p=0.03$). A similar result was found for $A\beta(42)$ ($p=0.0004$ and $p=0.03$, respectively). The CSF level of α -synuclein was higher in the APOE $\epsilon 4$ homozygotes in the AD group than in patients

1. Open an image of a friend's face in Photoshop. Using either the Clone Stamp or Healing Brush tool, select a spot that is part of his face. This should be a spot that is not part of the shirt he is wearing. 2. Click in a spot that is on the shirt. This should be a spot that is not part of the person's face. 3. Now, click in the selected spot in your image. Photoshop will copy the selected area into the destination image and paste it into the designated spot. 4. Once you have finished editing the selected area, click outside of the image area and save the edited image. Dodge and Burn Dodge and Burn are effects that replace a color of an image with a specific color, creating a shadow effect. The colors to choose from are: Black, Cyan, Red, Magenta, Yellow, Green, and Blue. A color is described as "compound" when it is made up of two or more of these hues. A Compound Color is created by adding colors together. The color used as a midtone is the Color of Neutral, which is gray in RGB and CMYK. The ability to create a shadow color effect is useful for retouching human skin tones and correcting the color of old photographs. In order to use Dodge and Burn, open an image in Photoshop, and choose the color you want to affect. To create a shadow, click in a spot that is opposite the sun direction to use as a shadow. You can choose from a wide range of shadow colors as well as lighter and darker shadows. 1. Select the Dodge tool and choose a spot that is opposite the sun direction. Note the shadow that is already present in your image. 2. Click in another area that is opposite the sun direction to place a shadow. 3. Save and close the document. The Opacity slider allows you to adjust the intensity of the shadow effect. 1. Click in the document to open the Transparency palette. 2. Click in the menu at the top of the palette. Select the Opacity slider. 3. Drag the slider to the right to adjust the Opacity. 4. Click Save when finished. Gradient Gradients are used to add more variety and depth to images. They allow you to paint different
