Three galectins, Xenopus laevis galectin (XLGal)1-3, were highly expressed in germ cells and in oocytes within the ovary. XLGal1 and 2 were co-localized within the ovary and XLGal3 was localized on the surface of germ cells. When germ cells were cultured for 3 days, XLGal1 and 2 mRNA levels were up-regulated. During early cleavage stages, XLGal1 and 2 were expressed together and XLGal3 was expressed after XLGal1 and 2. Ovaries from Xenopus laevis, containing ovarian follicles or isolated oocytes were subjected to real-time RT-PCR. XLGal3, 1 and 2 were all up-regulated in the presence of steroid hormones, such as progesterone or estradiol. Next, XLGal3-expressing oocytes were treated with progesterone. Ovaries from Xenopus laevis females were cultured for 21 days, and then treated with progesterone for 3 days. The oocytes were then isolated and XLGal3 was detected. Treatment with progesterone significantly increased the expression level of XLGal3 in both oocytes and ovary explants. In both cases, XLGal1 and 2 were slightly up-regulated, but not at a significant level. These results show that XLGal3 is up-regulated in an oocyte/follicular cell-specific manner during gonadal sex differentiation.All about the Raspberry Pi 2 This
