Libro Nacho 04 PDF Hello, I have the following line of code: $description = $row['description']; $encoding = $row['encoding']; which converts the HTML tags in the description into characters and then the encoding values from 0-40 hex codes into integers. It works well and returns the correct values, however now I want to save these values into database in a column with the varchar data type. The problem is when I export the values to the database, instead of a bunch of 40 characters, it saves a random number of values like this: 7A28-5908-DD28-F609-853F-F688-6D5E I tried different encoding utf8_general_ci, utf8_unicode_ci, utf8_general_ci_n, utf8_utf8_general_ci_n, utf8_general_ci_n, utf8_utf8_general_ci_n, utf8_utf8_general_ci

Let me start to introduce the Nacho Book by AO. .Gaelic football Gaelic football is a variation of association football (known in Gaelic-speaking Ireland and the United Kingdom as Irish football or in Scotland as shinty) played by Gaelic Athletic Association teams. Gaelic football was invented in the 19th century as a way of promoting Gaelic games and the GAA. The rules are similar to those of association football and, like this game, can be played by men or women. The game was first played by men in Croke Park, Dublin, on 17 January 1886. The Gaelic game continues to be popular in Ireland and worldwide, with over ten million people playing the game in official events and leagues. It was the only team sport at the Glasgow 2014 Commonwealth Games, with Gaelic football and Hurling being included on the programme. History Gaelic football was invented in the early 19th century as a way of promoting the GAA in a country where thousands of Gaelic speakers had lost their culture when forced to emigrate to the New World. It was also the only team sport at the 1886 Games in Chicago. The rules were adapted from the rules of association football. They are similar to those of association football, with a few notable differences. For example, the field of play is bigger (180 yd), and the shape of the ball is slightly smaller (Irish size) and lighter. The game was promoted in the United States by Dan Dooley, who then opened the first Gaelic football club in the English-speaking world in New York City. By the turn of the 20th century Gaelic football was the dominant team sport in Ireland. In 1893 the Irish Football Association was founded by John O
