That's a lot of data. And because that's a lot of data, EA Sports has commissioned a real top-notch camera crew to record the motions of a football club during a real match. Then they spliced together all of that motion capture data to create the ultimate motion comic version of a football match: EA Sports FIFA 22 Motion Guide. This is a spectacular new video, and it's been months in the making. Let's take a look at it and see if it captures all the moves of the definitive moment in EA Sports FIFA history. EA has an epic, epic history with FIFA. And FIFA 22 is the first time that a team and game developer has broken through and really produced a title that's so good that it makes EA's PS3 classic, Madden NFL 11, feel like a joke. After years of trading punches with rivals, FIFA was set to finally get a title that could stand up to the likes of Madden NFL, NBA 2K, or even NBA Live. EA went into the development of FIFA 22 from Day 1 with what they call their "focus mode." And that means they were really, really focused on making sure the game was as close to a real, full-game experience as possible. By not veering from that intensity and focus, EA was able to come up with an absolutely incredible, unprecedented football experience. It's a game that feels like it has that little bit of extra juice. The goal for FIFA 22 was to take the game back to its roots and to make it as real as possible, and that is seen in the entire collection of motions you're about to see. From the flicks, to the tackles, to the passes, to the shots, to every single throw-in, to every single shot on target, to every single slide tackle, to the diving header, to the single dribble, it's all here and all grounded in a fantastic story of a Brazilian club's preseason. From the opening, the goal is to see if EA can take what they've done for FIFA 15 with the Xbox 360/PlayStation 3 and put it on Xbox One and PS4. And they do this with a game that's as close to a real football match as you could possibly want. The pitches are the exact dimensions of FIFA 15 and the camera are identical.
