Here is a brief introduction to this newly-implemented feature from EA Sports: One of the most highly anticipated features of FIFA 22 is the introduction of HyperMotion Technology, a brand new engine which captures the movements of 22 elite players playing a full-scale high intensity football match in full motion capture suits, to generate full-motion video for use in the in-game commentary and the new FIFA Ultimate Team mode. The technology is powered by a combination of advanced motion capture algorithms and high fidelity motion capture data from real-life matches, involving a World-Class Team of players. The engine uses the player's movements at the precise moment they happen in the game's world to create an enhanced and more realistic, intuitive and engaging game. What exactly is HyperMotion Technology? How does it work? How does it compare to the previous engine? And will the new engine impact the gameplay of FIFA 22? Get caught up in today's feature, and ask questions about HyperMotion in the comments section below. We've got you covered!

Simmons, Rios, Aguero, and more: As EA Sports game designers, we're huge fans of real-life, on-pitch action games like FIFA, and we've been trying to master it from the start. After some development of our own, we learned a lot from the in-game match engine of FIFA 13, and have been applying what we've learned to FIFA 22. The goal of the engine is to not only match the feel of real-life football on the pitch, but also the drama of the real-life games. High-fidelity FIFA gameplay with the precision of real-life soccer: During the development of FIFA 22, we set out to create the most realistic football game we could. This has made it possible to produce and implement an engine that can communicate with the gameplay to a degree that was never possible before. Even with all the help of technology, every game of FIFA is different. That's what makes

Coming to the Xbox One, PlayStation 4 and PC platforms in May this year, EA SPORTS FIFA 22 is the biggest, best-known and most popular association football series. What's new in FIFA 22? Fans of the FIFA franchise will notice that FIFA 22's Ultimate Team mode is bigger than ever before. Players will be able to create up to 50 lineups across all three modes, which will mean more unique player kits, more and bigger transfers and more individual rewards - the game has never been bigger or better. The biggest change to the game is the return of the new 'Dynamic Football' system, which dynamically changes the way the game plays in real time depending on the team and opposition. Every aspect of the game will be affected by the ever-changing ball and environment. When a team has the ball, players will move faster, there will be more unpredictable, attacking and defending. When the opposition have the ball, players will move slower, there will be more predictable, possession-based football, with longer build-ups and quicker, high-pressure attacks. Dynamic Football is one of a number of exciting and new features introduced in FIFA 22. Up to 100 million interactions can now be tracked per team, so head-to-head situations now have a more active feel and may change in intensity and outcome, while over 100 new celebrations have been introduced. Playmaker Moments will make you feel like you're in the heat of a match and Player Impact visuals will bring the game closer to real life.
